The most important official act of the Executive was to commute the sentence of Nannie Woods, the colored woman convicted in Franklin county of arson, from death to life imprisonment. THE PULTON SPLIT.

At 10 o'clock, when the other business of the evening had all been disposed of, the door was opened and delegations from the First precinct of Marshall Ward, who had been waiting on the outside, were invited in and extended the courtesies of the floor. Messrs, Hartley, Surg, Burch, and others represented the old Fulton Club, and Messrs, Myer, Angle, and ex-Policeman Welsh were present in behalf of the new organization which, as reported in the Dispoteh, was formed about a week ago. Both sides were given a hearing, and there was some little feeling manifested.

Mr. Hartley first spoke. He said the Fulton Club, which is a standing organization like the Old Dominion or Powhatan Club, held its first meeting of the campaign on Monday night. They were ready for the fight, had about one hundred and fifty at their meeting, and wanted the committee to know that they were still in Fulton and would like some funds for necessary expenses during the canvass.

Mr. Angle said he appeared as almost the single representative of the other faction, as it was called. He had always been a Democrat except when he went off with the Headjusters. He explained that some time ayo four members of the Executive Committee decided that it would be best to move the headquarters of the Fulton Club from Donahue's Hall, which was considered obnoxious to Democratic principles, and later Mr. Burch consented to the move. This question of what hall to use seems to have been the sole cause of the division. Mr. Angle insisted that all of the 123 men enrolled in the new ciub would go to the polis and vote for Wise, and he division. Mr. Angle concluded by saying that his club had no favors what ever to ask. All they wanted was to be put on an equal footing and have both clubs or neither of them recognized.

Mr. Bowry raised the point that this was a matter with which he had nothing to do. Let the Fulton people have as many clubs as they want. Discussions could do no harm and might do good.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

structions to the Grand Jury. (Special telegram to the Dispatch.)
LYNCHBURG, Va., September 16.—The United States District Court for the Western district of Virginia—Judge Paul presiding—convened here this afternoon.
There are a large number of persons in at-

Judge Paul's instructions to the grand jury were the most practical and sensible heard for a long time in a United States court. He said: The jury is instructed to look carefully into all cases of mail-robbery and attempts to defraud the Government, the sending of improper matter through the mails and similar violations of the the mails, and similar violations of the statutes. They are also instructed to un-quire into all election frauds and all efforts to hinder fair elections, and similar

When he came to the head of violation of the internal-revenue laws the Judge When he came to the head of violation of the internal-revenue laws the Judge made a special request of the jury to exercise their discretion, and keeping in view the spirit rather than the letter of the law, take no cognizance of trivial cases and those originating in netty spite. To sell a little liquor in case of sickness or other great emergency is not criminal, but pardonable. Then it is an act of kindness, and not a violation of the spirit of the law. Look carefully into all cases under this head and see that there is some foundation for them. The law desires to punish those who make a business of peddling and selling liquor without license.

OTHER PROCEEDINGS. The grand jury then retired to their coom, and the docket was read. A number of cases were called, but as the capiases had been executed the cases were con-ned, and new capitases were ordered to be issued.

The first case taken up for trial was that of Samuel Hilton, of Floyd, charged with selling liquor without a license. The petit jury was sworn, the indictment was read, and the examination of witnesses progressed until adjournment.
